Canada Plans To Open Door To War Refugees

The Cupboard Was Bare . . . So Was The Furnace

As members of three families prepared for their first night in their newly squatted home on Decarie Boulevard in Montreal, others gave the kitchen situation and the heat conditions some attention. At left, above, is shown Mrs. Aime Leblanc, mother of six children, peeking into the bare cupboard, while at right, Maxime Cyr, veteran of both wars, prepares to light the building's first fire for this season.

Soviet Continues To Fight Untiringly For Peace, Birthday Crowd Told

LONDON (CP)—In a speech marking the 29th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, Marshal Leonid A. Govorov declared today in Moscow that Russia would "fight untiringly for a lasting, stable and democratic peace."

The 49-year-old hero of Leninград told a great crowd assembled in Red Square that Russia could not fail in the fight because she "enjoys the support and sympathy of the wide masses of the people throughout the world."

"That is why," he declared, "despite the intrigues of the forces of world reaction, the cause of democratic peace must triumph."

PARADE LASTS FOR HOURS

Govorov's speech, broadcast by the Moscow radio, preceded the customary hours-long parade through Red Square by masses of ranks of soldiers and workers.

The broadcast account of the proceedings did not indicate whether Prime Minister Stalin—usually the central figure on these occasions—was present. The annual policy declaration was delivered in the Bolshoi Theatre Wednesday night by Gen. Andrei A. Zhdanov, a secretary of the Communist Party and chairman of the Supreme Soviet.

Not Matter For Ottawa, Says King Of Polish Treasure

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister King today told a press conference the question of the missing Polish art treasures was not a governmental matter as the treasures had been kept in Canada in private custody.

Mr. King was commenting on statements made here Wednesday night by Polish legation authorities that 136 pieces of Polish art treasures which had been kept in Canada during the war now were missing. (See story page 18.)

The Prime Minister said the Canadian government had received no request from Poland or the legation here for assistance in locating the art works.

L. B. Pearson, Under-Secretary of State who attended the press conference, interjected that some Polish art treasures had been kept in Canadian government property during the war but had since been returned.

Mr. King added that Canada had kept $17,000,000 of gold bullion for Poland and this also had gone back to Poland.

"The government has no control over these possessions," said Mr. King in reference to the art treasures.

Mr. Pearson said that when the Polish treasures came to Canada the Dominion government was aware they were entering this country, but was not concerned with their custody. Some "leeway" had been given to their entry. However, the matter was one of "private property."

Haircuts May Soon Cost More

Victorians may pay more for a haircut if the Prices Board approves a request of the Barbers' Union for a price increase for haircut and shave.

G. B. Frankling, secretary of cover have also asked for a quest had been made for a price adjustment and if approved it would mean a price increase on a haircut and shave.

Union Barber Shop in Vancouver have also asked for a price increase and if granted, Vancouverites may pay 60 cents for a haircut and a corresponding higher price for a shave.

Early Retirement Not Considered By Premier King

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister King told a press conference today he had no intention of retiring in the immediate future from the leadership of the government or the Liberal Party, but he had not reconsidered his decision to retire before the next general election.

He had been asked whether in view of the present political situation and the wishes of his followers, he might reconsider his decision not to lead the Liberal Party in another general election.

"The general election in 1945 returned a very good administration," Mr. King said with a smile, "and its constitutional term of office does not expire until 1950."

At some time before 1950 he would give thought to whether he should reconsider his decision.

FOR PARTY TO DECIDE

Any party should realize it must be prepared eventually to select a new leader and that applied to the Liberal Party. He was ready to retire any time the party desired, but he was giving no thought to such a contingency at the present. It was too soon to consider what would happen a number of years hence.

What the country needed was strong capable government.

Asked what he thought was the reaction of the Canadian people to the Tuesday elections in the United States, he said they would doubtless note the trend against having a number of parties.

(Third parties made a poor showing in the U.S. voting.)

MINORITY VOTES

Questioned on the recent elections in Canada in which the Liberals lost two seats, the Prime Minister said the successful candidates had been elected on minority votes and the voting showed many more against the Conservative viewpoint than for it.

Too many parties and too many free wings were not in the best interests of the government or the people of Canada, he said.

He was opposed to coalition governments as a general rule, he said. It might be necessary to have a coalition for a definite object, but a strong single party administration was preferable. The Conservative mind in one party and the Liberal mind in another was the best solution.

Sentence Suspended

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane today suspended the sentence of Leonard Bath, Saanich youth, who was found guilty yesterday by an Assize Court jury of carrying and concealing a revolver. Sentence was suspended in view of the fact that the accused had carried the revolver without wrongful intent, but for the purpose of selling the weapon.

$8,500,000 In Silk Shipments For This Port Within One Week

Nearly $8,500,000 worth of silk from the Orient will have reached Victoria within one week when Ss. Henry N. Stephens, of the American Mail Line, commences unloading at Ogden Point docks Saturday.

R. N. B. Cumberbatch, shipping agent for Ritnet Consolidated Ltd., said special silk cars would be barged over here to pick up the precious cargo, which is destined to go to eastern U.S. mills.

Last Saturday, Ss. Mount Graylock, also of the American Mail Line, completed unloading 4,000 bales of silk at Ogden Point docks.

Valued now at $1,400 a bale, the silk has risen to almost three times the prewar value of $500 a bale.

The Henry N. Stephens is due at William Head quarantine at 9 Friday evening, but will probably

Baby Wears Daddy's Anti-Negro Badge

The "lightning streak" badge on the sleeve of 16-month-old Marian Whitman's playsuit is the emblem of the Columbians Inc., a secret Atlanta, Ga., order in which her father, R. L. Whitman, 37, is a leader. Whitman, who is shown holding his daughter, was arrested with four others on charges of inciting a riot after they had tried to prevent a negro from moving into a street partially occupied by white people. Police said the Columbians are an organization like the Ku Klux Klan.

U.S. Goods May Be Shipped In Bond On Alaska Highway

OTTAWA (CP)—Shipment of goods in bond over the Alaska Highway will be authorized by the Canadian government, it was announced today.

Simultaneous announcements were made here and in Washington that goods in bond would be permitted to move over the highway and connecting roads in both directions between Alaska and the United States.

The government said the new arrangement was an implementation of undertakings given by Canada when it gave the U.S. authorization to build the highway.

Under the previous regulations, there had been no provision for shipment of goods in bond over Canadian roads.

NOT FULL TRAFFIC

The Alaska Highway system, the announcement declared, is not yet in condition for general civilian traffic. "It is not anticipated," it added, "that it will be possible to use the road without restrictions for some time to come."

"However," the statement continued, "the Canadian government has been taking active measures to improve and increase facilities along the highway, and as the situation has improved it has permitted increased traffic."

The action now taken in authorizing, in so far as facilities are available, transit in bond of goods . . . is taken in anticipation of the

37% Tax Cut To Be Over-All

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal revenue from personal income tax in 1947 will be 37 per cent below the government's wartime take from this source.

This calculation was made Wednesday night in a radio address by Finance Minister Isley, who said that a 16 per cent drop after the war's end plus a further decrease of 25 per cent in 1947 revenue would average out to the 37 per cent figure.

However, finance experts here explained this figure has no direct connection with the reduction in income tax paid by any particular individual. It is the overall average of reductions which include the raising of exemptions.

The exemptions for single persons was raised from $660 to $750 and of married persons from $1,200 to $1,500 as of next Jan. 1. This will throw about 500,000 persons off the income tax-paying rolls, so their decrease will be 100 per cent. But the reduction will be less than 10 per cent in the higher brackets.

(See Mr. Isley's radio address page 10.)

Must Conform With Existing Migration Law

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister King announced today the government had approved measures to make possible the movement to Canada of some refugees and displaced persons who are admissible to this country under existing Canadian immigration regulations.

Mr. King told newspapermen in a press conference in his East Block office that these arrangements will permit the necessary immigration inspection to be made of refugees and displaced persons now in displaced persons' camps in the occupied European zones or otherwise under the care of such organizations as Unrra.

Up to now there has been no way in which these persons could receive the necessary inspection prior to proceeding to Canada. Nor has there been any organization capable of arranging for their movement to Canada.

Mr. King said special Canadian immigration officers will be sent to Europe to facilitate the movement and co-operation is being sought from military authorities in Germany. It is not, however, expected actual inspections will be possible in the occupied zones for some time.

The persons concerned are certain relatives of Canadians who, it was announced at the last session of Parliament, will be permitted to enter Canada if their Canadian relatives undertake to house them and see they do not become public charges.

Special legislation, passed in May, provides for entry of persons of specified relationship to Canadian residents who are in a position to receive and care for the refugees. The relationships are: Wife or unmarried child under 18 years of age; unmarried son or daughter 18 years of age or over; father or mother; unmarried brother or sister; orphan nephew or niece under 18 years.

Persecuted Minorities Motion Brings Violent Row In Assembly

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP)—An explosive Egyptian question concerning the alleged persecution of racial and religious minorities in central Europe was passed on to the United Nations Assembly as a draw today after a violent quarrel in the Assembly's steering committee.

The Egyptian resolution, which proposed that the General Assembly "invite" governments concerned to abide by the U.N. charter, finally received a vote of three for and three against, with three abstentions and five committee men not recorded.

USES HIS GAVEL

President Paul Henri Spaak intervened with a banging gavel to suppress the wrangling just before the committee adjourned Wednesday night.

The Egyptian resolution named no countries and did not specify what minorities were being persecuted.

The document immediately was challenged by Dmitri Manuilsky, Foreign Minister of the Soviet Ukraine, and by Andrei Grinichko of the U.S.S.R. Both insisted on having more precise details.

Philip Noel-Baker of Britain entered the discussion with the statement that he had no knowledge of the terms of the Egyptian motion. However, he said, the British government has "complete and tangible information" about the movement westward of Jewish refugees. He asked the Egyptian representative if it was these people who were meant.

Instead of replying, Egyptian delegate Mahmoud Bey Faizy addressed himself directly to Mr. Manuilsky.

AUSTRIA AND GERMANY

Mr. Manuilsky replied, first, that perhaps Mr. Noel-Baker had more information about the meaning of the Egyptian resolution than "its authors." Then he said that Central Europe meant only Austria and Germany and that he could say that no racial or religious persecution existed there since the Nazis were smashed.

"But perhaps the Egyptian resolution refers to Poland," he continued. "In that case, there are no doubt massacres of Jews have taken place. The Jews have full rights and privileges of citizenship in Poland, but there still exist a group of Poles in opposition to the constituted government and they do murder Jews."

Mr. Spaak banged the gavel when he attempted to mention Palestine.

Nearly 5,000,000 Canadians At Work; Unemployment Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's civilian labor force totaled 4,977,000 persons Aug. 31, compared with 4,828,000 last June 1, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today in the fourth of a series of official surveys of the labor situation.

The force—composed of persons who are either working or have jobs from which they are temporarily absent or are seeking work—showed an increase of 149,000 over the previous survey and about 450,000 over the Feb. 23 survey. The figures also showed a decrease in unemployment from 126,000 June 1 to 117,000 Aug. 31.

Increase in the force, the report stated, was principally accounted for by students entering the labor market during the summer vacation. In addition, it is growing as a result of the return of discharged military personnel to civilian life.

Most of the increase occurred in non-agricultural industries, where the labor pool was estimated at 3,658,000, compared with 3,551,000 at the last survey. However, the agricultural force was 1,319,000—well above the high level of 1,277,000 of June 1.

The report showed an increase in the numbers employed in every section of Canada. In British Columbia it was 393,000 as compared with 374,000 at June 1.

Winnipeg Grain Pit Chief Scores Wheat Pact As Dangerous

TORONTO (CP) — George S. Matheson, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, today charged the government at Ottawa entered into the long-term British-Canadian wheat agreement with a view to "weakening the forces of political opposition in the west and ensuring solidarity within the (Liberal) party."

In a speech to the Empire Club of Toronto, he said members of Canada's grain trade had been "betrayed" by the government and were making "the strongest possible public protests against such unwarrantable encroachments on their liberties." He advised businessmen throughout the Dominion to "awaken to the danger that threatens . . . before it is too late."

Despite assurances to the contrary, the long-term contract was in effect a bilateral agreement "despite the avowed aims of the United Nations in the direction of international trade to which both Canada and the United Kingdom have subscribed."

"Do you not think that when the Economic and Security Council gets down to discussing tariffs, embargoes, quotas, preferences, cartels, etc., the other nations are likely to regard Canada and the United Kingdom with prejudice, not to say hostility, eyes and to question the sincerity of any proposals either which heretofore has existed."

Two Canadians in New York as delegates to the United Nations' General Assembly were interested keenly in their close contact with a United States national election for the first time.

They are John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader.

As Canadian politicians visiting in a friendly neighbor's country, they would not comment in any detail on their reaction to a political upheaval which saw the government swing from left of centre, which probably is the position Mr. Coldwell.

Though he was not in favor of abolishing imperial preferences "at the present time," Mr. Matheson suggested "the thought that imperial preference . . . is simply national self-sufficiency on a limited international scale."

Obstacles to broader international trade—tariffs, cartels, imperial preference and the like—have not yet been removed and delay "only cultivates the ground from which rises the poisonous growth of socialism, with its stabilizing effects on human endeavor . . . our own government has not escaped this infection."

As Canadian politicians visiting in a friendly neighbor's country, they would not comment in any detail on their reaction to a political upheaval which saw the government swing from left of centre, which probably is the position Mr. Coldwell.

Though he was not in favor of abolishing imperial preferences "at the present time," Mr. Matheson suggested "the thought that imperial preference . . . is simply national self-sufficiency on a limited international scale."

Obstacles to broader international trade—tariffs, cartels, imperial preference and the like—have not yet been removed and delay "only cultivates the ground from which rises the poisonous growth of

ALL IN OUR FAVOR

WHEN HE SPOKE TO THE YOUNG men's section of the Winnipeg Board of Trade the other day, Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction, aroused a considerable amount of interest because of the optimistic picture he painted of Canada's present economic condition and the country's potentialities for solid progress in the years immediately ahead. Naturally this dynamic member of the King cabinet presumed the nation could depend upon co-operation between federal and provincial governments, amicable relations between labor and management, and a general willingness on the part of the people to recognize that a spirit of good will is the essential price to pay for prosperity and happiness.

Mr. Howe had ample justification for gazing into the future through rose-colored spectacles. After more than a year of peace Canada can look back on substantial progress toward full reconversion, though the somewhat tardy production of those commodities for which the public is clamoring—and for which it has the money to pay—is not calculated to cool the tempers of the consumers. For example, there are today in gainful employment in Canada no fewer than 4.8 million persons, as against 3.8 millions in 1938. This means an addition of a million workers, and basic unemployment problems are well on the road toward solution. Put it another way: In the first week of October the Department of Labor reported 144,000 unemployed applicants and 142,000 positions; and since that date, incidentally, most of Canada's strikes have either been settled or are nearing disposition. Between Aug. 1, 1945, and the same date this year, moreover, 600,000 service personnel have doffed the uniform and more than this number formerly engaged, directly or indirectly, in war work have been absorbed into civilian pursuits.

Full employment, of course, is not an end in itself, as the Minister of Reconstruction quite properly told his Winnipeg audience, for it must be accompanied by high standards of living. But our advance toward national economic health is substantially reflected by the growth of our national income—from less than four billions in the early '30's to 5.3 billions by 1939, 10 billions during the war, while this year it will reach or pass the 11-billion mark. One of the most satisfactory aspects of this record, of course, is expressed in the obvious truism that we have achieved a more equal division of the national income than has ever been achieved anywhere. Thus it is up to our people, people in all walks of life, to play their full part in the co-operative effort for which Mr. Howe appealed. After all, governments can do little more than provide the right climate for economic growth and social progress and contentment; the rest depends upon our own enterprise and efficiency. It never will be said that Canadians are short of either of these basic commodities.

SHOULD CHANGE THE RECORD

YESTERDAY IN MOSCOW MARSHAL A. Zhdanov, chairman of the Supreme Soviet, compressed his contribution to the celebrations of the 29th anniversary of the Russian Revolution into a speech in which he mixed assertions of his country's determination to work for a "democratic peace" with blasts at "world imperialists" and "atom blackmailers." As part of the same celebrations today Marshal Leonid A. Goryov, the hero of Leningrad, took the stand in Red Square and reiterated Russia's implacable resolve to "fight unflinchingly for a lasting, stable and democratic peace . . . despite the intrigues of the forces of world reaction."

Why Marshal Stalin did not take part in these proceedings, either by appearing on the reviewing stand in Red Square or delivering his customary anniversary speech, is not revealed by the dispatches reporting the celebrations. But what the peoples of the world, who demand peace just as insistently as do the Russians, would like to hear from the principal spokesmen in Moscow is a new and more friendly reference to the Soviet Union's wartime Allies. No good purpose can be served by continuous harping on the fantastic idea that the western democracies are hatching all kinds of sinister schemes to undermine the authority and frustrate the hopes of the Russian oligarchy.

A CASE FOR JOINT EFFORT

UNTIL DR. E. A. CLEVELAND HAS carried out his survey of Lower Vancouver Island's water supply and needs, an undertaking for which the terms of reference are virtually complete, adequate scientific information will be lacking to determine the extent to which Saanich's requirements can be met. It will be noted, however, that prairie visitors, who have their eyes set on this locality for settlement, no less than the residents of the community, are deeply aware of the improvement greater deliveries of water would bring to the municipality.

Many years ago the late Luther Burbank saw the fields of Saanich, gazed into the future, and predicted for them development as one of the garden spots of the world—if water were available in sufficient quantity to nourish their potentialities. Now some of the essentially practical folk who farm Canada's prairies have added their voices to the refrain the plant-wizard sang. It is obvious, of course, that all Greater Victoria would rejoice with Saanich if the desired supply could be secured. The welfare of each district in the community would benefit directly from the northern neighbor's advancement. But it is equally obvious that mere wishing will not bring greater volumes of domestic or irrigation water to the district that needs it. Nor will the achievement of that objective be brought closer if divided forces seek to impose their particular theories on one another. If there is a practical means of attaining the objective, surely it calls for united effort to a single end.

It has been argued here frequently that establishment of a unified board, representative of the different municipalities or, more preferably, as a standing committee of an amalgamated Greater Victoria, would facilitate that approach to the problem. The suggestion, moreover, should be all the more worthy of consideration as the international authority appointed by Premier Hart prepares to assume his task. The case of Saanich water is surely one which merits joint effort—and as quickly as feasible.

WHAT WILL HE DO?

NO PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED States has resigned because of a politically-hostile Congress. It is scarcely likely that Mr. Truman will establish a precedent by appointing a Republican Secretary of State who could promptly take over at the White House if the chief executive so desired. Two members of the Democratic Party, one from each chamber, have suggested this course to the President. So far the latter has had nothing to say on the matter.

One of these days perhaps the Congress will take into consideration an amendment to the Constitution which would change the relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. Under the present rigid system the members of the cabinet cannot be questioned by the elected representatives of the people as they can under our parliamentary methods. And only on rare occasions does the President appear before the legislating body in person to deliver his "message" or to appeal for special action.

To be really responsive, of course, any government where party lines are clearly drawn should be representative of the majority decision. Under our neighbor's inelastic system the President is elected for four years, the House of Representatives for two, and one-third of the Senate must also seek re-election every other year. Hence the present situation in Washington, in the light of Tuesday's voting, finds a Democratic chief executive with the Republicans enjoying a working majority in both upper and lower chambers.

Regardless of how Mr. Truman feels about the difficult position facing him, however, and notwithstanding the hostility of a party which has remained in the cool shades of opposition for 14 years, the prospect of resignation will not be seriously considered by those who recognize the complexities such action would project—especially as it might foreshadow the long-drawn-out procedure essential to a basic change in the constitution.

TRADE NOTE

ONLY BEGINNING TO EMERGE FROM the newsprint shortage, we have encountered another scarcity—this time in composing room paper towels. It is a condition which promises to resurrect a legend—the old printer's towel of song and story that stood on its own merits with the rigidity of the encrusted grime of the trade. According to the poem which immortalized this humble adjunct of the craft, the towel, stiff from constant use, uncorrupted by the laundry, leaned against the washroom wall until it fell one day and crashed in a thousand pieces. But its shortage-induced counterpart will never gain that inflexibility. It is a specially processed cloth which, far from absorbing dirt, repudiates even the water on wet hands—which remain wet after its use.

PARABLE OF THE SWAN

DURING RECENT DAYS VICTORIA'S Parks Commissioner Warren has been chasing an elusive swan that has escaped from Beacon Hill Park and is disporting itself with the undomesticated wild life of the city's waterfront. The bird is young and, so far at least, too vigorous for its custodian to recapture. It has shown a complete lack of appreciation for the care with which it was nurtured through the dangerous cygnet stage—fatal period for many of its fellows—and is oblivious to the menaces to which it is exposed in its new field of activity. The parks commissioner is justifiably worried over its ability to avoid oil slicks, natural enemies, and the possible attack of human agencies. In other words, Mr. Warren wants the swan back in the park, where, through tradition, it belongs.

The swan, however, is too ignorant to recognize the dangers into which it ventures, too willful to return to the security and assured living of Goodacre Lake, and too wily to be caught by the blandishments which the parks superintendent has offered it. Quite conceivably it may come to an unfortunate end in the unprotected reaches it now roams. But, for better or for worse, it wants its independence, its freedom to go where it pleases when, and how, it pleases. And nothing the competent and trained parks official can do about it appears to change its yen for self-determination.

Every auto collision could be prevented, if each driver would remember that the other may be a fool.

Walter Lippmann

HELTER-SKELTERISM

SINCE PRESIDENT TRUMAN did not feel called upon to speak out about the issues in the election, it is very difficult to understand why he chose the eve of the election to speak about the Pacific Islands. Or if he had to speak, why, in so delicate and difficult a matter, touching the good name and the vital interests of the country, he had to be so crude and so casual.

For the effect of his words is to put the American claims in the worst possible light, to give a skeptical and cynical world the occasion for saying that Americans have a double standard of morals: the Atlantic Charter and the United Nations Charter where the vital interests of their allies are at stake, and a naked unilateralism where their own vital interests are at stake.

HERE IS A GLARING example of the mischief and confusion that must result from dealing in bits and pieces with the settlement of a great war. The Allies have not yet begun to talk about a peace treaty with Japan. Yet in law, Okinawa and Iwo Jima, which the U.S. occupies, and the Kuriles and Northern Sakhalin, which the Soviet Union occupies, are still Japanese. The title to the mandated islands, which the United States occupies, is either in the United Nations as successor to the League, or perhaps no one seems to know exactly—in the Allied and Associated Powers of the last war.

No one has asked the U.S. to evacuate the islands, and the question as to how they are to be governed de jure and permanently cannot be separated from the general settlement of the Far Eastern war. Moreover, Americans cannot measure correctly their own strategical interest in these islands until they know what the Allies can agree to about Japan, about Korea, about the Kuriles, and about China, including Manchuria. To single out special U.S. claims and invite a debate about them alone is most unstatesmanlike: it causes the nation to ask more than she may in the end and as part of a general settlement feel she needs, and it causes the other powers to put the heaviest kind of discount upon whatever she may wish to say about their claims in regions which to them are strategically important.

UNLESS THE FAR EAST is treated as one strategical field, a settlement at a few points in the Pacific makes no sense.

The mandated islands—the Marianas, the Carolines, and the Marshalls—are not only outposts for the defence of Hawaii and the west coast: they are stepping stones and staging areas to the Philippines, to the East Indies and southeast Asia, to the coast of China, and to Japan. The Kuriles are outposts for the defence of eastern Siberia but they are also positions from which the shortest passage to Japan and China can be interfered with, and Alaska rendered insecure.

Okinawa and Iwo Jima are points from which Japan, Korea, Siberia, Manchuria and north China can be dominated by air, and the exits and entrances to the vital East China Sea controlled by sea power. But their strategical importance and their permanent place in the scheme of things depends upon what is settled about Japan and Korea and China by the Russians, the Chinese, the British, and the Americans. Since talk has not begun about any of these problems, the time has not come to talk about Okinawa and Iwo Jima. The United States occupies them, which is sufficient for the time being.

THE SYSTEM UNDER which American foreign relations are being conducted does not permit a considered general policy, and invites just what the U.S. is getting: bits and pieces of policy decided upon separately and by separate parts of the government.

The Constitution vests in the President the dual and inseparable duties of Commander-in-Chief and final authority in the making of foreign policy. Mr. Truman is unable to perform these duties and yet—at unpredictable moments under pressure or personal whim—he intervenes casually in some difficult question, like atomic energy, Palestine, or the Pacific Islands.

The general conduct of foreign affairs falls, therefore, by default into the hands of Secretary Byrnes. Yet he has organized himself so that he cannot conduct them. Instead of presiding over the formation of American policy, since no one else does, he has appointed himself the negotiator in a series of isolated and narrow European disputes.

IT IS AS IF THE CHAIRMAN of the board of a great industrial corporation spent most of his time and almost all his energy on the lawsuits and contracts which are a small part of the affairs of the corporation. Naturally the real business of the corporation would be neglected, and would be conducted in bits and pieces by subordinate officials who lack authority and do not see the interests of the corporation as a whole.

That is why, as some one has said, the State Department operates as a loose confederation of tribal chieftains, and why the State Department does not really make or administer the whole foreign policy of the United States.

The conduct of affairs is disorganized because the President, whose duty it is to shape foreign policy as a whole, cannot do this, and because Mr. Byrnes, who ought to be doing it in his place, is never in Washington long enough to work out general policy with his department and his colleagues. Thus there is no general policy, no conception of the relationship of one issue to another, and the elementary idea that a nation's interests must be treated as a whole is dismissed as too silly and impracticable to be considered seriously.

When you are traveling in waters around here it is sound advice to throw your anchor as

But Nobody Ever Does Anything About It

Strikes Without Strife

CLARENCE H. CURTIS, of the Department of Industrial Relations at Queen's University, points out in Maclean's Magazine that:

The sight to strike places the public in a very serious dilemma. To compel a man to remain at his job regardless of wages, hours and working conditions is to make him a slave to the industrial system. On the other hand, strikes, uncontrolled and unchecked, not only interfere with the rights and with the welfare of large groups in any community, but they threaten the whole system of law and order so essential to freedom. The solution to this dilemma is not easy to find. Certain conclusions suggest a course of action.

Mr. Curtis suggests that: The difference between a legal and illegal strike should be clearly defined by law to control the strike. The right to strike legally should be fully protected. A legal strike should be undertaken in the absence of an agreement and after conciliation has failed, and should be endorsed by a majority of the employees affected by secret ballot in a government-supervised vote. The provincial or federal government should appoint a strike commission composed of a judge of the Supreme Court of the province as chairman, and three members representing organized labor, the employer and the public. That commission should enforce the strike by determining who should enter the plant, what materials should go in or out and what activities should be allowed in the plant consistent with the strike and safety of the property. With police guarding the gates and a commission to make the strike effective, the picket line would be superfluous.

If a strike interrupts the production of essential goods, the commission would operate the plant until the dispute was set-soon as your engine stalls, because by the time you come to the conclusion that you can't get it started, the tide has carried you off into deep water and offshore into the tide rips and out of sight of shore or traffic.

When it blows against the tide in this vicinity it takes a sturdy vessel to live in it. (If you don't want to take the advice of a fisherman, ask the skipper of any of the C.P.R. vessels running out of this port.)

This is also good advice for the greenhorns that are hired by the Rehabilitation Board of this area who come down aboard the veterans' boat and ask a lot of foolish questions instead of being capable of convincing the veteran that the odds are against him being able to earn his living in a (ballot) coffin condemned lifeboat.

In the first place, if these lifeboats were seaworthy, they would never have been removed from the deck of a steamer—where they have sat for 15 to 20 years.

I watched the "Lady Luck" break up, and she broke in two pieces on about the second wave when she came ashore. Any kind of a seaworthy vessel should have stood up better than that.

One more word to the wise: When you give money to a veteran on a business deal, such as a garage, etc., and the garage is no good, the veteran loses his garage and his money; but when you give money to a veteran to buy a boat for fishing or any other marine use, and the boat is no good, you lose the boat, the money and the veteran (and possibly his partners).

Once a supporter of De Valera but now his most bitter opponent, MacBride shrewdly guessed that enough M.P.s might cross the border to upset the balance of party politics in Eire. Well aware that the three-month-old Clann na Poblachta is canalizing I.R.A. energies into constitutional channels, De Valera knew that MacBride might be his most dangerous opponent when Eire next goes to the poll.

While he kept mum on MacBride's plan, Dublin political observers wondered whether he would spring an election soon, before the Clann can get its financial house in order.

A Hot Potato In Ireland

A BRAND new plan for ending the partition of Ireland was causing Eamon de Valera some puzzlement, according to the (British) News Review. Headed by razor-tongued Sean MacBride, the newly formed Clann na Poblachta, white hope of Eire's Republicans, came out with a deceptively simple suggestion: Northern Ireland's M.P.'s should be invited to sit in the Dail as well as in Sir Basil Brooke's Stormont Parliament (in Belfast).

Pointing out that De Valera's 1937 constitution claims that Eire consists of the whole island and names the Dail as the parliament of all Ireland, MacBride argued that representatives of the seven-six counties should sit in the Dail to make the claim good. Confident that the Nationalists, Republicans and some of the Labor M.P.'s from the north would accept, he slyly added: "If the Unionists come we would welcome them."

And the Financial Post winds up a recent editorial column with this little story:

A big-time gambler had just died. The funeral was well attended by his professional friends. In eulogy, the speaker said, "Spike is not dead. He only sleeps." From the rear came a voice, "I've got $100 that says he's dead."

To a vast metropolis, as to a wide section of the English-speaking world in far-flung places, the New York Times brings another poem in prose in the following description:

This is a time to find the lesser fruits of autumn, the wild berries that are too full of seeds, too bitter, too insignificant for man's fare. This is the time to seek out the blue-black fruit of the fragrant honeysuckle and the scarlet clusters that top the jack-in-the-pulpit's dying stem. Black alder, the brilliant winterberry, is at its prime, and bitter-sweet is beginning to burst its husk and reveal its red-orange beauty. Snowberry, white as milkweed floss, shines now on its slender branches, and grey-silvered bayberry clusters along the stems.

Bird Park Here Could Rival Famous Aviaries

An aviary can be constructed in Beacon Hill Park that could rival the famous bird parks of Catalina and Waikiki if the citizens of Victoria are willing to make the investment, E. H. Lewis, former curator at these two show places told a small audience of city aldermen and school trustees at the City Hall Wednesday evening.

Mr. Lewis, who is now in charge of the small collection of birds at Beacon Hill, showed three reels of film on the bird life in the two parks and how they are cared for.

There are literally dozens of brilliantly plumaged birds in these parks, and with few exceptions they would be able to winter in Victoria without specially heated cages, Mr. Lewis said, so long as they were properly penned, adequate shelters from the cold winds built and care taken in their feeding. A few species such as the flamingo and the bird of paradise would require heated quarters for approximately three months of the year.

Al D. D. McTavish, chairman of the parks committee, introduced Mr. Lewis and said that Wednesday's meeting was the start of a campaign to obtain a proper bird park at Beacon Hill. "We need something in the park to make an added tourist attraction," he explained. "And if Victoria can be made aviary conscious I think that this might be the answer."

NEED PROPER HOUSING

Mr. Lewis warned that it was no use considering a bird collection unless the city was prepared to "give them proper quarters, because it's not fair to the birds to keep them in captivity unless they are properly looked after."

He said that the Catalina Bird Park had more than 400,000 visitors yearly and many of the birds that could stand Victoria climate are not to be seen in captivity anywhere in Canada, which would make them an added attraction here.

Asked if the terrain at Beacon Hill would lend itself to construction of the aviary, Mr. Lewis said he had the spot all picked out just beyond the deer pens, which would be ideal and could be developed.

He stressed that it is important to have all the pens close together because it facilitates feeding as well as making it more convenient for visitors to see the collection.

Aged Criticize Milk Rationing

Victoria's oldest members of the Aged Pensioners' Association, meeting Tuesday night, sharply criticized methods used in rationing canned milk and felt that the rationing of the commodity generally was unnecessary.

Members voiced enthusiasm for a public meeting on old age pensions called by the Trades and Labor Council this Friday. They appointed T. Guest and C. M. Smedley and E. E. Hardisty, secretary, to represent them at the meeting.

It was decided to continue to hold meetings at the First Baptist Church rather than change to the Kings and Rose Streets hostel.

Three women's organizations offered to supply refreshments for the pensioners' meeting. Refreshments for this meeting were served by the Lake Hill and Craigflower women's institutes.

Must Mobilize Resources For Borstal Plan—Weir

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hon. George M. Weir, provincial Education Minister, said at a reception in his honor Wednesday night that "if the Borstal system is to be satisfactorily introduced here by the Attorney-General, all the resources of education will be mobilized behind him."

Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer had previously announced he intended to re-introduce the Borstal system of correction of juvenile boys to British Columbia.

Borstal boys will be invited to enroll in the correspondence department in Victoria, have access to the public lending and traveling libraries and will get the benefit of Pro Rec. Dr. Weir said. "In these three departments, B.C. leads the Dominion."

Will Rogers Loses

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (CP) — William F. Knowland, Republican, was re-elected as U.S. senator in Tuesday's election after a stiff fight with Will Rogers Jr., son of the late humorist, and Douglas (Wrong Way) Corrigan.

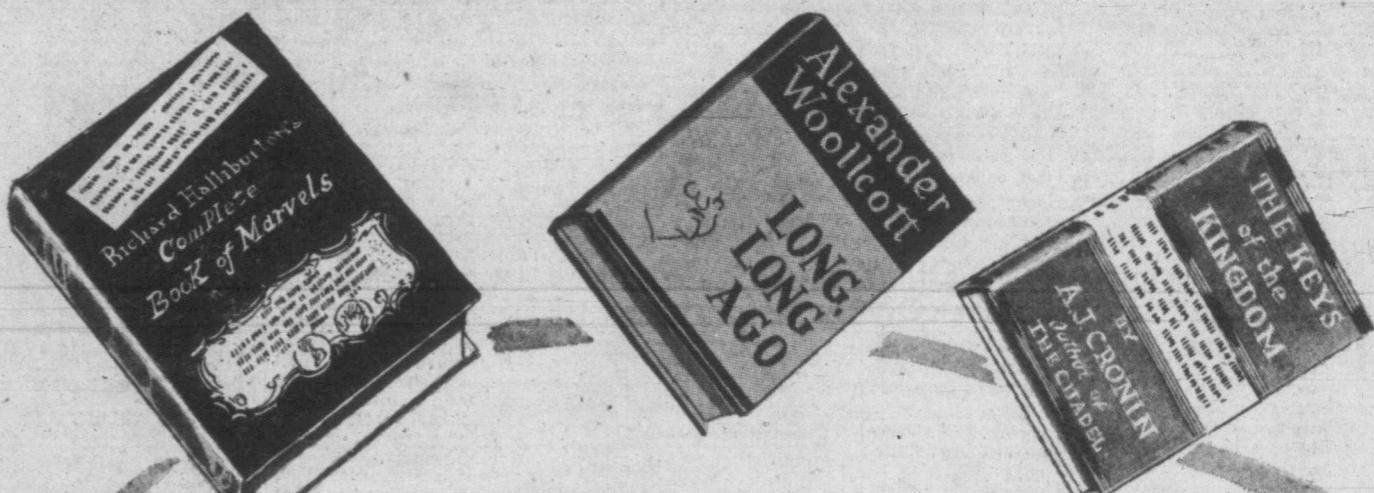

Balloting was close throughout Tuesday night with the election not being decided till Wednesday. Rogers ran on the Democratic ticket. Corrigan, the Prohibition Party candidate, gained notoriety with his "wrong-way" Trans-Atlantic flight to Eire some years ago.

Interpreters Of World About To Unite To Assure The Absence Of Translator's Cardinal Sin—Bias

By MARC J. PARSONS
FLUSHING MEADOWS, N.Y.

The interpreters of the world are about to unite.

The 50 to 75 men and women skilled enough to handle the complicated translating work at international conferences plan to form the International Institute of Interpreters, probably within the next month, according to Jean Herbert, chief of the "consecutive interpreters" at the General Assembly.

The new organization has nothing to do with the United Nations, Herbert explains. But the meetings here and at Lake Success have resulted in a larger gathering of the clan than usual, making organizational work easier.

And salaries have nothing to do with the new organization, either. Pay ranges from $2,690 to $8,200 a year; since this is income tax-free, it's worth roughly from $3,000 to $10,000. In addition, most interpreters get living allowances of $4 to $10 a day, and some on a temporary basis are paid as much as $90 a day. Travel expenses are paid for those who come from abroad.

These interpreters, some of whom have spent most of their adult lives traveling from one international gathering to another and others who are seeing their first big conference, are interested primarily in establishing and assuring the high professional standards required for interpreting the words of the world's top diplomats.

Cardinal sin among interpreters is the injecting of personal bias into translation; one such instance of this will result in immediate dismissal from the institute, Herbert says.

"We intend to guarantee that our members will be free from all bias. We will offer the institute's guarantee of the integrity of our people."

Right now there is a serious shortage of qualified interpreters because of all the international goings-on here and abroad, and Herbert says that there are not really more than 50 top men available for the most highly skilled branch of the profession—"consecutive interpretation."

A consecutive interpreter is one who listens to a speaker and translates his remarks into another language the moment the speaker finishes. Besides a complete command of both languages used, such interpreters must have a prodigious memory (they take only the briefest notes), ability as public speakers, and—what interpreters generally consider the most important asset—an extremely wide cultural background which enables them to catch all the fine nuances of meaning in every highly technical subjects.

Depending upon conference rules, a consecutive interpreter may be required to condense all speeches by one-third, or to translate them almost verbatim. On a speech lasting half an hour or longer this requires quite a bit of mental agility.

Simultaneous interpretation got its biggest international boost at the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials and is getting a thorough test at Lake Success. If the delegates are as enthusiastic about it as Col. L. E. Dostert, who is organizing U.N.'s first 20-man team of simultaneous interpreters, it probably will be adopted for most conference sessions.

This form of interpretation runs concurrent with every speech. The speaker's words are picked up by a microphone and immediately translated, sentence by sentence, into four other languages. Any listener can hear the original or any one of the other four simply by wearing a set of earphones and turning a key to the one he wants—French, Spanish, English, Russian or German.

Big objection among diplomats to this form of translating is that it doesn't allow the speaker to listen to the interpretation. Most diplomats speak at least one other language beside their own and occasionally catch misinterpretations. Gromyko objected to the translated version of one of his speeches at a Security Council session.

The third class of translators are "whispering interpreters" who sit close to a given delegate and whisper a translation to him, usually in a language not classed as one of the conference "working" languages.

Interpreters usually handle only two languages, although most are qualified in one more and sometimes several additional ones. Few interpreters are U.S.-born—one such is Henry Hammond, a 24-year-old ex-G.I. from Cleveland who has lived more than 10 years in France. Several are naturalized U.S. citizens. Of the simultaneous interpreters at Lake Success, four are stateless persons, but this per cent reportedly is unusually high for a group that size. One interpreter was called in from Japan where he had been on the staff of the Supreme Commander; several were at Nuremberg.

There is still at least one job open—translating Russian into Chinese.

'Lowering the Empire's Waistline'

For over 150 years the British Empire's vital lifeline has run through the Mediterranean, eastward over Iraq to India, thence to Australia and the Far East. World War II showed its vulnerability, especially of that key bottleneck, the Suez Canal. Other factors, such as modern air transport and the proximity to the Mediterranean of Russia's expanding Balkan and Middle East influence caused Britain to plan strong supplementary lines around and across south Africa.

Old Lifeline
New Lifeline
Air Base
Naval Base

Part of new lifeline will be old sea route around the Cape, protected by warships and air cover from bases along the west coast of Africa. Other part will be air route across south Africa, linked to Mediterranean by string of bases along Nile River. Pivot of system will be huge new fortified bases in Kenya and Tanganyika, centered around Nairobi.

British military authorities in the Middle East report a general staff plan to move the Empire's historic lifeline far to the southward, giving South Africa a vital new importance for future defense. Previous plans, to build a gigantic base along the Suez Canal, extending eastward into Transjordan, may be abandoned. Vertically-shaded band on map shows principal "aerial lifeline" to great new bases in vicinity of Nairobi, replacing those at Alexandria and Haifa.

Fire In Enderby

ENDERBY, B.C. (CP) — Fire Wednesday razed the building housing the weekly newspaper Enderby Commoner, destroying the mechanical department, printing press, paper stocks and office equipment.

Residents of the Pemberton Valley, 100 miles northwest of Vancouver on the P.G.E. Railway, for years have been fighting a losing battle against the Lillooet River. Now the Dominion government has sent reinforcements to aid the residents and it is expected the river will be conquered in a few years.

The 1,000-foot-high valley, with the Cascades close by, is considered one of the richest in the province. At one time its population was considerably greater than the 100 persons who live there now. Shortly its population will probably be several times what it is today.

The Lillooet River has slowly been flooding and eroding the fine agricultural soils of the Pemberton Valley. Eating away the highly-productive soil, the river has been slowly driving the population out of the valley.

Now the Dominion government has come to the aid of the residents with a $475,000 project which it is hoped will completely arrest the Lillooet and other rivers in the valley and provide 30,000 acres more of fine agricultural land.

Of these 30,000 acres, 13,000 are owned by the provincial government and have been reserved from alienation so that they will be available first to war veterans who may wish to start farming in the district.

The rich soils of the Pemberton Valley have in the past produced the best potatoes in the world. J. Decker, long a campaigner for the reclamation project, twice took first prize for seed potatoes displayed at the Chicago Fair. He also twice won the Canadian championship for potatoes.

The Pemberton Valley has also produced many other fine vegetables and has grown some of the finest seeds in the province. It is expected that when the reclamation project has been completed, the Pemberton Valley will be second only to the Fraser Valley as producer of vegetables for Vancouver.

The Dominion government hopes to get started on the project soon. At the last session of the House of Commons an appropriation of $100,000 was made to the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration to start the project. In all it is

Receives King's Medal For Outstanding Service

Mrs. Lewis M. Buckle, 1241 Monterey Ave., pictured with her husband and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Douglas Buckle, was the principal at an informal ceremony at Government House Monday afternoon, when Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Banks presented her with the King's Medal, a decoration for service in the cause of freedom. Mrs. Buckle is one of a small group of women, heads of working units for British Relief in the United States during the war, who has been so honored.

Late Afternoon Rites Unite Ruth Ross and Cmdr. Whitmore

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria and the Prairie Provinces took place Wednesday at 5 in the Bishop's Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral, when marriage vows were exchanged by Ruth Constance Ross, daughter of Mrs. W. M. Forrest, Toronto, Ont., and Cmdr. Norman Whitmore, R.C.N.R., aide de camp to the Lieutenant-Governor of Saskatchewan, and son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Whitmore, 2208 Smith Street, Regina.

For the quiet ceremony performed by Rev. A. E. Whitehouse, the bride wore a tailored suit of navy blue, with a white faille blouse, navy hat, and white accessories. She carried a white corsage bouquet. She was attended by Mrs.

Enid Middleton, whose marriage takes place Saturday, was the principal, when Mrs. Roy Green, Colville Road, entertained Wednesday with a kitchen shower. The bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. F. Middleton, and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. A. V. Green, were presented with corsage bouquets by Miss Barbara Galt Girton. Gifts were presented to the honor guest from a large bowl decorated in the form of a daisy. Guests were Mesdames V. Kirkham, M. Turnbull, I. Fraser, H. Forman, O. Woods, G. Girton, E. Hemsworth, A. Bater, W. Wells, J. Harper, F. Miles, and Misses Barbara Kitto and Peggy Cullen.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Caddick, 957 Westing Road, received the names Lynda Arlene, at a baptismal ceremony at St. Martin's-in-the-Field, last Sunday afternoon. Rev. A. E. Greenhalgh officiated and sponsors were Mrs. H. G. Stertan, Seattle, Wash., Miss Terry Slack, proxy for Mrs. J. K. Martin, Edmonton, Alta., and Mr. Bob Rogers. Following the ceremony the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rogers entertained at tea at their home on Westing Road. The baby, whose paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Caddick, Calgary, Alta., wore an heirloom christening robe belonging to the Caddick family.

The rally opened with a banquet at which Rev. H. Kerley addressed the gathering on "Young Canadian United in Christ." Rev. McPherson acted as chairman and special guests were Dr. and Mrs. Hugh McLeod, Mrs. W. McPherson, Mrs. H. Kerley and Clyde Woolard.

Miss Ella Marr gave a summary of the year's work. Miss Babe Langdale, convener of the W.A. of First United Church for banquet arrangements, Miss Annie Fagerbury convened a games program and the Misses Marion Matthes and Babe Langdale led a sing-song.

At the second session, Clyde Woolard gave a survey of his program.

A shield for highest average attendance was awarded jointly to the Chinese and Metropolitan Young People's Unions.

Rev. J. C. Jackson conducted installation ceremonies for new officers and Clyde Woolard gave the dedication address.

Clubwomen

Lake Hill W.I.—Plans for a sale of work and tea on Nov. 20 were completed at a recent meeting of Lake Hill Women's Institute, with the president, Mrs. G. W. Massey, in the chair. There will be stalls of home cooking, sewing, knitting and afternoon tea. The child welfare committee reported visiting the institute's adopted patients at the Solarium, taking birthday and Haloween gifts. The recent shower of fruit and vegetables resulted in 14 large cartons of produce for the Solarium. Members will co-operate with Craigflower Women's Institute in serving afternoon tea to aged pensioners at their meeting Tuesday. A minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. J. Findlay. Tea hostesses were Mrs. W. Carpenter and Mrs. W. S. Webster.

Auxiliary Plans Charity Ball

Plans for a charity ball to officially open the Dollar Fund for the erection of the new wing of St. Joseph's Hospital, were discussed at a meeting of St. Joseph's Junior Auxiliary.

A reception following the ceremony, was held in the groom's suite at the Empress Hotel. Among the guests were Admiral E. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., R.C.N., and Mrs. Mainguy; Cmdr. L. Roland and Mrs. Roland, Archdeacon J. K. Irwin and Mrs. Irwin, Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Conn, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. B. Ker, Mrs. Price and Miss Dorothy Price of Duncan.

Following a motor trip to Comox, Vancouver and Los Angeles, Cmdr. and Mrs. Whitmore will reside in Regina.

It was announced by the president that auxiliary patrons for the coming year would be Mesdames R. W. Mayhew, Margaret Darling, D. D. McTavish, B. Olson and G. F. Amyot.

A sum of $87.40 was realized from a talent project during the month of October.

Soroptimists Name New President

Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Banks and Mrs. Banks have extended their patronage to the dance revue "Stardust," presented by the pupils of Wynne Shaw and sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary to the Jubilee Hospital at the Royal Theatre, Nov. 18 and 19. Other patrons are Premier John Hart and Mayor Percy E. George and Mrs. Hart.

Mrs. Stella Gummow, superintendent of the B.C. Women's Institute, declared the Canadian Daughters' fall bazaar officially open at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, in the new K. of P. Hall, Cormorant Street. General convener, Jack Spiller; publications convener, Muriel Fargher; recreation convener, Babe Langdale.

The rally opened with a banquet at which Rev. H. Kerley addressed the gathering on "Young Canadian United in Christ."

Answer: I think you are perfectly silly if you let your promise to your mother keep you from marrying the woman you love. No one should regard a death-bed promise as binding because it is always exacted under a pressure that no one has the right to inflict on another.

When a loved one is passing away from us forever, our hearts are torn with affection and compassion and we feel that we can deny them nothing, and we will promise anything that we think will give them even a minute's happiness. We do not bargain with them, no matter how unreasonable their request. We do not stop to think that the dead should not rule the living, or that their demands may mean a useless sacrifice of a whole life.

So we have the sad cases, like your own, in which a man's or woman's life is wrecked by a promise made to a dying person. Believe me, such promises are better broken than kept, for surely it can add nothing to the happiness of a saint in glory if they know that they have ruined a living person's life.

Hasty Salads — To separate quickly a head of lettuce, cut out the core end. Then hold, with core end up, under running water until the water, with the help of your fingers, has forced the leaves apart.

Double Purpose — A good brush-session before you go to bed will not only reward you with more lustrous locks but will act as a sporific that helps to lull you to sleep. Best method is to lie down on your back with head a-dangle from the side of the bed, and for a full 10 minutes keep the brush going from hairline to crown.

Happy Medium — Feminine charm can be wrecked by carrying your head well and by buckling down seriously to a routine of nightly throat care. But needed first is a realignment of posture that holds a chin line at a clean-cut right-angle with the column of the neck. Holding up your head is a matter of conscious control in the first stages of posture-discipline. But in no time at all, you will find yourself automatically holding your head high when you walk, sit or stand.

Correct Posture — Contour slips under the chin can be corrected by carrying your head well and by buckling down seriously to a routine of nightly throat care. But needed first is a realignment of posture that holds a chin line at a clean-cut right-angle with the column of the neck. Holding up your head is a matter of conscious control in the first stages of posture-discipline. But in no time at all, you will find yourself automatically holding your head high when you walk, sit or stand.

Watch Your Shoes — Almost any woman who half-way tries can walk sure-footedly and gracefully in flat-heeled shoes. But a spirited and graceful walk in high heels takes bits of doing and enough room in shoes for toes to spread. The more room for toes to extend themselves and give feet better grip, the better balance you get. Imprisoned in tight shoes, toes are powerless to support you.

Interchangeable — For a dual dressing style of coiffure—one hair-do for daytime, one for evening—keep the scissors off your locks for awhile. Hair needs to be a little longer for its ups and downs. With enough hair length and a little practice, any girl can make an easy transition from daytime to evening and add another coiffure to her wardrobe of styles.

Ilsley Foresees Good Chance Of Balancing Budget This Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has achieved postwar prosperity despite her heavy financial commitments during the war, Finance Minister Ilsley said Tuesday night in a radio address.

In a "report on Canada's financial and economic position" the minister made the following points.

"1. We have paid this huge cost of the war fairly, honestly and safely . . .

"2. We have put our veterans and war workers back into employment and achieved postwar prosperity . . .

"3. We are reducing taxes . . .

"4. Despite continuing war and demobilization expenditures we have made so much progress in reducing expenditures—that we have a good chance this year of balancing our budget . . .

"5. We have held prices in check during and since the war. Our success in this field is well known and acknowledged. One has only to look at what has

Youth Buried In Gravel Pit Slide

REGINA (CP) — James Vancha, 20-year-old Regina youth who looked up Wednesday at the 50-foot overhanging bank of a gravel pit and said: "Gosh, but that sure would bury a fellow deep," was crushed to death a moment later when the bank collapsed on him.

Vancha, who was hauling gravel from a pit at Pilot Butte, 10 miles east of here, was waiting to have a tire of his truck repaired when workmen warned him he was standing in a dangerous spot. As they spoke a small slide buried the ground about him ankle-deep. Before he could move an estimated 100 tons roared down.

The body was recovered 40 minutes later.

Clothing Charges Bring $1,000 Fines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nine months of investigation by Royal Canadian Mounted Police into importation of $40,000 worth of "black market" clothing into Vancouver from eastern Canada ended in police court Wednesday when two city clothing firms were given fines totaling $1,000.

Arnold and Quigley Ltd., which pleaded guilty to triple charges in connection with possession of $34,000 worth of untagged men's clothing, drew a fine of $750 from Magistrate W. W. B. McInnes.

C. B. Quigley, secretary of the firm, was given a suspended sentence when he pleaded guilty to two additional charges — conspiracy and failure to keep books of account.

On the same two charges Morris Lennett, manager of Parkie Fashion Clothes, was fined $250 and Magistrate McInnes described him as "undoubtedly . . . father of this whole business."

Crown Counsel Dugald Donaghy, who came to court prepared for a legal battle, had the whole consignment of seized clothing standing beside the court building in a truck.

Quigley had been provided with a letter of credit on which he could draw a cheque at Montreal, where a manufacturing firm was allegedly "bootlegging" the clothing, the Crown prosecutor said. Prices paid the manufacturer were in excess of ceilings.

May Have To Curtail Welfare Activities

Unless the remaining $8,000 needed to complete the Community Chest $100,000 objective comes in within the next week the 23 member agencies will be forced to curtail their welfare work in Victoria by 10 per cent, D. G. Decker, Community Chest secretary, said today.

At the present time collections stand at $92,200, Mr. Decker said, and some returns are still coming in from the special names division. Donations to the Community Chest may still be sent to headquarters, at 1234 Pandora Avenue, he pointed out.

Returns Home

Capt. J. D. C. McTavish, son of Ald. and Mrs. D. D. McTavish, returned home from Singapore this week. Capt. McTavish, who will take up residence shortly in Victoria with his wife and young son, has been with the Canadian Intelligence Corps in the Far East for more than a year. He was stationed at New Delhi, Singapore and other points in the Far East. Following a month's leave, Capt. McTavish will go to Calgary to obtain his discharge from the army.

During the last year there had been some relaxation in certain controls, he said. This had been deliberately undertaken as a matter of policy. However, it was felt that the process of decontrol must be kept on an orderly basis. Canada had avoided inflation and was prepared "through floor price legislation, to avoid the kind of price collapse which dealt such a severe blow to farmer and fisherman at the end of the last war."

Pringle Gets Release As Wedding Present

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alex Pringle, ace right winger, Wednesday was given his release from the Vancouver Canucks as a wedding present by owner Coley Hall.

Pringle played with Canucks, U.S. amateur hockey champions, last year, but since mid-October has been seeking his release so he could play for Edmonton Flyers of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Hall assented after getting a wire saying Pringle was to be married soon and wanted to stay in Edmonton. Earlier, Pringle was refused his release until the Flyers provided Vancouver with a player to match his ability.

The interior is already opening up with a number of small lines offering charter trips and also private craft being operated.

A lot of interest is being shown there now in crop dusting, and Mr. Hague believes this is bound to lead to an increase in the air development in that area.

The 1,000-mile trip Mr. Hague and Mr. Swanson completed in 16½ hours flying time, and each of the two-passenger planes, to be operated by the flying club here, consumed $32 in fuel. The new additions bring to four the number of aircraft now offered by the club.

Clothing Charges Bring $1,000 Fines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nine months of investigation by Royal Canadian Mounted Police into importation of $40,000 worth of "black market" clothing into Vancouver from eastern Canada ended in police court Wednesday when two city clothing firms were given fines totaling $1,000.

Arnold and Quigley Ltd., which pleaded guilty to triple charges in connection with possession of $34,000 worth of untagged men's clothing, drew a fine of $750 from Magistrate W. W. B. McInnes.

C. B. Quigley, secretary of the firm, was given a suspended sentence when he pleaded guilty to two additional charges — conspiracy and failure to keep books of account.

On the same two charges Morris Lennett, manager of Parkie Fashion Clothes, was fined $250 and Magistrate McInnes described him as "undoubtedly . . . father of this whole business."

Crown Counsel Dugald Donaghy, who came to court prepared for a legal battle, had the whole consignment of seized clothing standing beside the court building in a truck.

Quigley had been provided with a letter of credit on which he could draw a cheque at Montreal, where a manufacturing firm was allegedly "bootlegging" the clothing, the Crown prosecutor said. Prices paid the manufacturer were in excess of ceilings.

May Have To Curtail Welfare Activities

Unless the remaining $8,000 needed to complete the Community Chest $100,000 objective comes in within the next week the 23 member agencies will be forced to curtail their welfare work in Victoria by 10 per cent, D. G. Decker, Community Chest secretary, said today.

At the present time collections stand at $92,200, Mr. Decker said, and some returns are still coming in from the special names division. Donations to the Community Chest may still be sent to headquarters, at 1234 Pandora Avenue, he pointed out.

Ilsley Foresees Good Chance Of Balancing Budget This Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has achieved postwar prosperity despite her heavy financial commitments during the war, Finance Minister Ilsley said Tuesday night in a radio address.

In a "report on Canada's financial and economic position" the minister made the following points.

"1. We have paid this huge cost of the war fairly, honestly and safely . . .

"2. We have put our veterans and war workers back into employment and achieved postwar prosperity . . .

"3. We are reducing taxes . . .

"4. Despite continuing war and demobilization expenditures we have made so much progress in reducing expenditures—that we have a good chance this year of balancing our budget . . .

"5. We have held prices in check during and since the war. Our success in this field is well known and acknowledged. One has only to look at what has

Returns Home

Capt. J. D. C. McTavish, son of Ald. and Mrs. D. D. McTavish, returned home from Singapore this week. Capt. McTavish, who will take up residence shortly in Victoria with his wife and young son, has been with the Canadian Intelligence Corps in the Far East for more than a year. He was stationed at New Delhi, Singapore and other points in the Far East. Following a month's leave, Capt. McTavish will go to Calgary to obtain his discharge from the army.

During the last year there had been some relaxation in certain controls, he said. This had been deliberately undertaken as a matter of policy. However, it was felt that the process of decontrol must be kept on an orderly basis. Canada had avoided inflation and was prepared "through floor price legislation, to avoid the kind of price collapse which dealt such a severe blow to farmer and fisherman at the end of the last war."

Future of air development in the interior of B.C. will rely mainly on light aircraft, according to Myles Hague, Victoria Flying Club director.

Mr. Hague and Arthur Swanson, also of Victoria, recently completed a 1,000-mile flight from Estevan, Sask., to Patricia Bay airfield in two former R.C.A.F. Fairchild Cornell training planes.

Following the trip, which took them over the B.C. interior, Mr. Hague feels there is a great future in air transport there so far as light planes of 85 to 100 h.p. are concerned. He doubts if the larger airlines will ever go into the interior to offer an extensive service.

The interior is already opening up with a number of small lines offering charter trips and also private craft being operated.

A lot of interest is being shown there now in crop dusting, and Mr. Hague believes this is bound to lead to an increase in the air development in that area.

The 1,000-mile trip Mr. Hague and Mr. Swanson completed in 16½ hours flying time, and each of the two-passenger planes, to be operated by the flying club here, consumed $32 in fuel. The new additions bring to four the number of aircraft now offered by the club.

Many Canadians Will Observe Remembrance Day At Their Jobs

By Canadian Press

All Canadians will pause to honor war dead next Monday, but only some communities and certain groups of workers are to mark Remembrance Day with a full holiday, a Canadian Press survey today revealed.

This 28th anniversary of the 1918 armistice is a statutory holiday and that means all government offices, banks and schools will close. But it requires a provincial or municipal proclamation for general observance in a province or a city—a step taken in only a few areas.

Port Arthur proclaimed a half-holiday to permit citizens to attend church and cenotaph services. Indications were stores and industries would fall in line with the proclamation.

As a result, most business houses and factories in Ontario and Quebec plan to operate as usual Monday, except that they will observe the traditional two minutes' silence at 11 a.m. and the majority will give employees time off to attend cenotaph services.

British Columbia, Alberta and New Brunswick have decided Remembrance Day a provincial holiday. By civic proclamation, the day will be marked as a holiday in London, Ont.; Belleville, Ont.; Kitchener, Ont.; Winnipeg, and Regina and other Saskatchewan cities.

Canada's principal ceremony of the day is to be in Ottawa, where Viscount Alexander, the Governor-General, Prime Minister King and diplomatic representatives will place wreaths on a temporary cenotaph on Parliament Hill.

Port Arthur proclaimed a half-holiday to permit citizens to attend church and cenotaph services. Indications were stores and industries would fall in line with the proclamation.

Monday noon at the Empress Hotel.

Subject of Mr. Massey's address will be "Canada in Perspective."

To permit many veterans who had met Mr. Massey overseas to hear him speak, the Canadian Club is inviting non-members to attend the luncheon.

Scrap Oil Tanker

TORONTO — The veteran 9,750-ton Imperial Oil tanker Trontolite has been sold for scrapping, closing a high seas career which took the 28-year-old ship unsathed through submarine-infested waters off the east coasts of North and South America during World War II. She was built in 1918 in Seattle.

The Trontolite carried highly inflammable cargoes, both alone and in convoy, but she came through the undersea warfare with no more damage than severe shakings from depth charges dropped by escorts attempting to destroy nearby U-boats. Once three ships immediately around her were torpedoed and two of them sank.

22 German Doctors To Be Put On Trial

NUERNBERG (AP) — U.S. prosecuting officers said today that a new series of American-conducted war crimes trials involving 22 German doctors, including one of Hitler's personal physicians, who have been indicted for offences against humanity, are expected to begin in about a month.

Many defendants are charged with conducting experiments on concentration camp prisoners and the mass extermination of "useless eaters"—people who were insane or otherwise helpless.

Among the physicians to be tried are:

Karl Gebhardt, president of the German Red Cross, an S.S. (Elite Guard) general and personal physician to Himmler.

Karl Brandt, formerly Hitler's physician, who was a general in the S.S. and Reichscommissioner of health and sanitation.

Pulp Firms May Buy Bulk Coal Mines

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Reports have been current in Prince Rupert that the Powell River and Pacific Mills, paper manufacturing companies, were negotiating to take over two important coal mining properties in the central interior.

The report said the companies' fuel oil contracts recently were canceled and they are considering the use of coal for their power plants.

It was said the coal would be mined at the rate of 500 tons a day from the two properties—Bulky Valley Collieries and Tel-coal Colliery—near the northern line of the Canadian National Railways about 250 miles east of Prince Rupert.

The coal could be shipped from Telkwa to Prince Rupert by rail for transfer to ship or scow and would probably involve installation of bunkering facilities at Prince Rupert.

Tucking In' Garden For Winter Requires Care

Here, the first frost generally arrives sometime in November, whether it is a few days early or late this year, will make little difference to our gardens, provided we know what to do and what "first aid" to render if necessary.

The atmospheric moisture here is always quite plentiful at this time of the year, and helps to resist any of the first light frosts.

The only time that one should become at all bothered about their garden is when a north or northeast wind occurs during a bright fine cold spell in November. At that time many tender plants are still too green and have not become sufficiently prepared for this sort of winter weather.

THE LAWN

Should any frost be expected, do not mow the grass. If grass is long, it must be cut, but mow right after the frost spell is over.

Grass is always wet in the mornings—if frost strikes it, do not allow anyone to walk on the lawn. It is easy to damage frosted grass by just stepping on it.

It is unwise to spade or cultivate any part of the garden during a frosty spell. If frost strikes deeply in the soil, be sure it has thawed out completely before digging.

Never set out plants or shrubs in frosty soil or during a frosty spell. There will be plenty of satisfactory days during our winter when planting may be done satisfactorily.

CAMELLIAS, EVERGREENS

These and other shrubs often suffer from the first frosts we experience here. Don't bother to wrap them up with burlap. This is not necessary or advisable.

It is not the frost that does the damage, but a too-rapid thawing out. Shrubs that are exposed to the morning sun on a frosty bright day often get "burned" while on a cloudy day they are not affected.

Should a bright sunny day be expected when frost strikes, the shrubs may be shaded by hanging a loose piece of cloth or burlap over them on the east and south sides.

POOLS

It is unusual for pools to freeze solid here, so eastern precautions are not necessary. To keep the water in the bird bath from freezing overnight, add one or two teaspoons of glycerine. The birds will enjoy the "sweet" water.

Should ice form on the pool—never break or crack it by force or the fish in the water under it will be stunned. The best method is to place a piece of 2 x 4 in the water now. It will prevent a solid sheet of ice forming.

Some gardeners drain their pools in winter. This is only necessary for very shallow pools. Provided the water is more than 15 inches deep, it will remain in good condition all winter and the fish do not need to be removed.

Leaves will settle to the bottom of the pool. If there is not a great quantity in the water they may be allowed to remain. Maple and madrona leaves must be fished out, should they blow into the water. A rake is a good tool to use.

MULCH

There are many plants whose roots grow close to the soil surface. Some of them, camellias in particular, suffer when the frost enters the soil and reaches their roots. By spreading a half-inch to one-inch layer of peat moss over the root area, a "blanket" protection is provided that is of great assistance.

Under the arrangement agreed upon, the city will buy the present Capilano Stadium home of Vancouver Capilano in the Western International Baseball League from the company for $25,000. The money would then be turned over to the parks board for development of a community centre in Hillcrest Park.

OAK BAY BADMINTON

Oak Bay community centre badminton club has secured the use of the Oak Bay High School auditorium for badminton on Tuesday and Friday nights throughout the winter. An organization meeting of the club will take place Thursday night in the Oak Bay Municipal Hall when officers for the coming year will be elected.

Requests No Harm

The seagoing swan from Beacon Hill Park has now made its way into Esquimalt Harbor and W. H. Warren, parks superintendent, today made a plea that the bird be not harmed by anyone who might see it. He particularly asked hunters not to shoot the young bird. It cannot live for any long period at sea, Mr. Warren explained, as it must have fresh water.

It is one of this spring's hatch-and while almost full size it has not yet got the snowy white plumage it will have with maturity, being still a somewhat dusky color.

The wings of the other young bird, hatched at the same time as the wanderer, have been clipped to prevent it from flying away too, and when the wanderer is caught its wings will also be cut.

The older birds, Mr. Warren explained, are used to staying in the park and are too heavy for much flying.

Seeks Re-election On School Board

With the announcement of Austin I. Curtis, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, that he will stand for one of the two-year terms as a Victoria representative on the board, all four of the Victoria members are now in the field.

Running with Mr. Curtis for the two-year term of office is Miss Isla Tuck, for which two are to be elected.

A contest is assured for the one-year term of office, with Waldo Skillings, Maj. R. H. Green, the sitting trustees, and R. F. Williams, labor candidate, all in the running.

Commission To Meet Truck Operators

The Public Utilities Commission Friday will meet in Vancouver with the Motor Carriers Association, representing the largest trucking firms of the province.

Under discussion will be details of the application of truck hauliers for an increase in freight rates.

Dr. W. A. Carothers, chairman of the commission, said previously the commission would use 15 per cent as a basis for working out increases on individual applications from various firms.

TRY NEW LEPROSY TREATMENT—Lieut. Benjamin R. Packer, U.S. Navy medical officer of Native Hospital at Kwajalein, examines suspected leprosy lesions on knee of Kalu, eight-year-old Marshallese girl from island of Wotje. Pathologists at Honolulu are attempting to determine an accurate diagnosis preliminary to undertaking an unprecedented experiment in treating leprosy with streptomycin. If verdict is leprosy and Kalu cannot be cured, she will die slowly of the deforming disease.

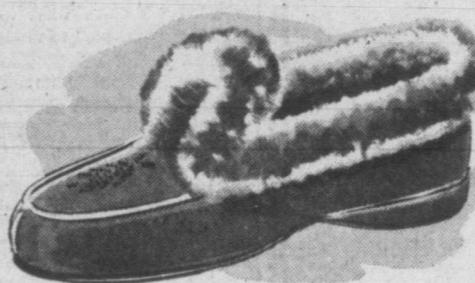

Teachers To Find Absentee Reasons

Victoria teachers will have the opportunity of being able to compare reasons for absenteeism among school children here against those of other communities, and also the incidence of absenteeism, when the survey now being carried on by Dr. A. J. Phillips is completed.

Tuesday Dr. Phillips conferred with a group of 24 teachers, who are doing the work of the survey in Victoria, and was introduced to the gathering by J. F. K. English, municipal inspector of schools.

It is hoped to find out the chief causes of poor attendance at both elementary and high schools, after careful tabulations have been kept for the remainder of this school year.

Imports Again Carry Mail For Winnipeg In National Grid Final

WINNIPEG (CP)—There aren't as many as in other years and their names—so far at least—may not be by-words in Canadian rugby but Winnipeg Blue Bombers, western Canada football champions, have their share of United States imports.

And if you ask some of the veteran Bombers who have played beside imports of past seasons and the 1946 crop—Wally Dobler, Bill Ordway, Don Hiney and Martin (Butch) Gainer, the latter making a second debut in the Bombers' blue and gold—this year's edition is not to be dismissed lightly.

Three of the four—Dobler, Ordway and Gainer—earned all-star western rating; they point out, and while western stadia may not have been exactly crowded by scouts from the U.S. professional circuits, the competition was rugged all the way.

Bombers got the four—and coach Jack West of North Dakota University—when they turned south for new material after their 35 to 0 drubbing at the hands of Toronto Argos in the Canadian final last fall. Dobler came here from Curtis Bay Cutters, Hiney and Ordway from North Dakota's Varsity squad and Gainer from a line-coach job under West.

Ordway, at blocking back, is the heaviest of regular back-fielders—190—and was assigned to the difficult task of "tagging" Calgary's stellar end, Hal Harrison, in the western playoffs. Coach West and Bomber followers were well satisfied with Ordway's performance. Greg Kabat, formerly of Wisconsin University, covered the same spot on Winnipeg teams of 1935-1939, and although Kabat may have been more versatile, Ordway is a sure tackler and solid blocker.

Hiney, at 24, the youngest import, has played at quarter, half, and although only 155 pounds, fills in at fullback. He is a deceptive runner, fair passer, and although Fritz is not the plunging type of Fritz, he is passing, kicking and open field running.

Winnipeg, in title-years, has always had solid quarterbacking. Bob Fritz, former Concordia star, led the 1935 squad to victory, and although Dobler is not the plunging type of Fritz, he is passing, kicking and open field running.

Victoria Kids Thrill Nanaimo Fans In Defeat

Victoria's "iceless" junior hockey players were back home today, nursing a flock of bruises but happy over their showing at Nanaimo last night when they dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the champion Clippers of the Pacific Coast Junior League.

It was the local youngsters' first appearance of the season and they treated up-island fans to some real bustling hockey with plenty of stiff checking and three fights thrown in for good measure.

Coaches Ivan Temple and Duke Keats were more than pleased over the exhibition turned in by their protégés and forecast: "We'll make it interesting for every club in the league before the season closes. With only a minimum amount of practice we gave the Clippers, a club packed with imports, all they could handle."

Clippers took a 1 to 0 lead on Johnson's goal in the initial period at 11:02 and added their second at 14:50 when Sisson rapped home a double relay from Laurie and Mitchell.

DAVYDUK SCORES

Both squads dented the twine in the middle canto, Davyduk notching Victoria's lone counter, with Kaleda tallying for Clippers two minutes later. Victoria pressed hard, but were off on their shooting when in close.

Last period gave the fans everything but goals. At one time the penalty box was jammed tighter than sardines in

Irene Strong May Claim World Mark

VANCOUVER (CP)—Irene Strong, young Vancouver swimmer, today was believed to have set a world record for the 220-yard breaststroke distance.

In a time trial last night, she covered the distance in three minutes, seven and 6-10 seconds.

Officials said it was a new Canadian mark as far as a hasty check could determine a world record, topping the time of Patty Aspinall of Indianapolis who covered the distance in 1941 in 3.07.08. Miss Strong will compete in the B.C. championship gala at the Crystal Garden Saturday night as a member of the Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club.

Want More Funds For Development Of Game In B.C.

A movement suggested by the Lower Mainland B.C. Gun Club to increase the allocation of funds to the British Columbia Game Department, for the propagation and preservation of fish and wildlife received the solid support of the Victoria Fish and Game Association at a meeting last night.

At present only 75 per cent of the fund collected is allotted to the conservation department, and the move under way is to increase it to the full amount of revenue collected by the game department.

It was also decided to hold retriever trials in the near future. The meeting also voted to support the move by the Chilliwack association to hold general meetings for all associated clubs in British Columbia.

The local fish group was also in support of the idea of having a retaining wall built at the outlet of Shuswap Lake to keep the level of the lake constant in summer and winter. A suggestion was added that a fish ladder be installed.

Certificates of merit for performances of members' dogs in the dog trials held at Cowichan Lake in September were presented to Norman Lord.

Two films, "Tweedsmuir Park" and "Sockeye Fishing" were shown during the evening.

Kulai's Four Counters Mark Spencers Football Triumph

Hudson's Bay and Spencers department store elevators are tied for the top rung of the Wednesday Soccer League following matches Wednesday which saw Spencers shut out the Army team 5 to 0, and the Bays come through with a 3 to 1 verdict over the Royal Canadian Navy. Headlining the Spencers win at Athletic Park was George Kulai, veteran centre forward, who followed up his three goals of last week with four markers for his teammates yesterday.

The cellar-dwelling soldiers managed to hold Spencers to one goal in the first 45 minutes, but after the intermission the winners took command and completely dominated the play as they rapped in four goals, the final three coming from the foot of Kulai.

Cec Cockerill of the Navy and Roy Speller of the Bays each tallied once in the opening half of their match at Colville Road and it wasn't until the final 20 minutes that Hudson's Bay were able to break the deadlock.

It was Speller again who scored the second goal on a pass from Sadler, while Kirby Ghent sewed up the game minutes later with a first-timer.

Next week league officials are looking for the battle of the season when Spencers and Bays meet to determine which club will take over undisputed possession of first place in the standings.

ONE OF the greatest guessing contests baseball has ever seen was ended Tuesday when bantam Leland Stanford MacPhail officially announced that Stanly (Bucky) Harris would be the manager of the New York Yankees for the 1947 season with Chuck Dressen as his number one coach. In recent weeks everybody associated with baseball in a prominent way has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the job. The list included Joe McCarthy, Billy Meyer, Lefty O'Doul, Leo Durocher, Johnny Neun, Red Rolfe, Babe Ruth, Jimmy Dykes, Rogers Hornsby and Frankie Frisch. The boys just barely missed getting around to Honus Wagner.

AS MANAGER under MacPhail, Harris has to be able to take it. He must be a showman, umpire baiter, master diplomat, nurse-maid and pleasing conversationalist. He has to appear on radio programs, wear striped shirts and loud sports clothes, smoke perfumed cigars and hang around with assorted Hollywood stars. One of MacPhail's bright promotions at Yankee Stadium last season was the staging of a style show with bathing beauties and all. Whether or not the former "boy wonder" of the Washington Senators will stack up under such a burden only time will tell.

SATURDAY'S Canadian football playoff here between Muskangs and Vancouver Meralomas promises to be a grudge affair. From all reports the Victoria club has been taking a kicking around in the committee room of the Big Four as well as on the field. Although the league executive had agreed to the Shaughnessy playoff system earlier in the season there was a strong move to send the Pacific Buckaroos over here instead of the Meralomas. Object—to give Vancouver a better semifinal with Meralomas going up against the league winners, V.A.C. It is pretty well known that Buckaroos have faded badly and right now cannot draw any size of crowd when they play in Vancouver. The local club was able to put up a strong enough case to retain the original playoff. Despite the fact Meralomas have come on fast in recent matches the Mustangs are confident of turning them back Saturday and going into the final.

Pails-Bromwich In Decisive Victories

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Watched by the five men who will name the Australia Davis Cup team, Danny Pails whipped Adrian Quist in three sets today to reach the finals of the New South Wales tennis championships, 63, 60, 63.

Jack Bromwich defeated J. Brodie, 64, 62, 61, in the other semifinal. Bromwich and Pails will meet for the title Saturday.

Duffy Sinks Three Goals In Ice Win

SAN DIEGO Skyhawks rambled roughshod over the Los Angeles Monarchs in a Pacific Coast Hockey League game last night by a score of 5 to 1. Wingman Maurice Duffy snapped in three period goals by Joe Carveth that ended the scoring at 3 to 3.

Coupled with Chicago Black Hawks' 6 to 2 triumph over New York Rangers meanwhile, the split in points at Detroit took another hitch in the standings, already tight as a drumskin.

The Bruins did the dusting themselves at Detroit last night by playing their fifth deadlock in eight starts against the Red Wings. The other two are victories and the eighth a loss. They gained the split on a third-period goal by Joe Carveth that ended the scoring at 3 to 3.

Midway of the second period Armand "Bep" Buldoin took a neat pass from Bill Cowley to tie the score. Taylor got his second goal of the game six minutes later and the Bruins trailed, 3 to 2, going into the final period.

New York tallied first on goal by Bryan Hextall at 4:11 of the first period. The Hawks tied it up 10 seconds later and from there were never headed. The Chicagoans counted three times in the first period and twice in the final frame.

The Hawks now are in a first-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, each with nine points, while Detroit is in the cellar just three points behind. Chicago's victory hurdled them into a third-place tie with New York, with the champion Montreal Canadiens close behind in fourth position.

The only game tonight matches Chicago with Canadiens at Montreal and a Black Hawks victory in this could establish possibly an N.H.L. precedent, lifting them all the way for a tie for last place to a tie for first in two nights.

The Canadiens, by the same token, are gunning for this one to better what they consider a far too humble position in life for Stanley Cup champions.

There was not one penalty during the Boston-Detroit game.

Billy Taylor pushed in a short shot two minutes after the game opened and Ted Lindsay hooked the puck into the corner of the Boston net 12 minutes later to put the Red Wings away to a 2 to 0 lead.

Yes—the "Elton" is absolutely water-tight, even in tropical rain.

Owing to special spinning and weaving methods, this new self-sealing fabric becomes absolutely impervious on contact with moisture. But it is a delightfully soft, silky texture, doing away with the usual discomfort of the ordinary rubberized fabric because this new weave also insures perfect ventilation. It is light in weight although double-textured throughout, and is fashioned in London by expert craftsmen in a style and finish up to the highest Wilson standards. The "Elton" keeps clean much longer than an ordinary raincoat and, when properly dry cleaned, is as good as new. Here is the quality waterproof you have been waiting for at a moderate price.

BETTER METHODS HAVE INCREASED CUBA'S SUGAR OUTPUT

Sugar production is the main industry of Cuba. When the crop is large, and brings good prices, the people of the island are pleased. Life seems better for them, since they have more money to pay the cost of living.

Sugar cane was grown to some extent in Cuba during the time of Columbus. It has been the island's leading crop for a century and a half.

Thanks to science and more modern methods, the yield of sugar from each ton of cane has been increased greatly. When "double grinding mills" were set up, the amount of juice taken from each ton of cane grew by 50 per cent.

Scientists study the cane juice, and find out how "strong" it is. After many tests, facts are learned which guide planters.

Yesterday I said that the same rootstock may produce good sugar cane crops for from 10 to 25 years. This is quite true, but it has been found better to make plantings a few years apart. On well-run plantations, the rootstocks seldom are left in the ground more than six or seven years before their place is taken by a new planting.

All sorts of things are done to sugar cane in the mills. There is cutting, shredding and rolling, and the hard parts of the stalks are robbed of their juice so well that they can be used as fuel. It is an old custom in Cuba to use the remains of the stalks to feed fires in the mills. The fires heat water in boilers, and the steam supplies power for cutting, shredding and rolling new batches of cane.

One product of the cane juice is molasses. Cuba sends millions of gallons of molasses to market each year.

Two or three tons of sugar may be obtained from an acre of Cuban sugar cane. Yet the acre record is held outside of Cuba. On the island of Java and Hawaii the acre production often is five tons. Cuba, however, is well ahead of Java and Hawaii in total sugar production.

The DOCTOR Says:

THE BODY REQUIRES MANY MINERAL SALTS
By WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M.D.

From 3 to 5 per cent of body weight consists of the mineral salts — calcium, sodium, phosphorous, iron, iodine, and small amounts of sulphur, potassium, chlorine, copper, manganese, and others.

The part which these minerals play in the economy of the body is not entirely understood, and for that reason self-styled food experts make extravagant claims for their mineral products.

Calcium and phosphorous are found in the greatest amounts in the bones and teeth, where they add to the strength of these structures. The body also uses calcium to help regulate the nervous system.

Convulsions may follow reduction in the calcium present in the blood. This does not mean, however, that convulsions can be treated by the administration of calcium, or that extra calcium will necessarily prevent convulsions.

CHILDREN NEED CALCIUM

Calcium is needed in the largest amounts by pregnant and nursing women and by growing children. Good sources of calcium in the diet are good quality pasteurized milk, cheese, green leafy vegetables, beans, and peas.

The amount of calcium in the body is affected by parathyroid, the secretion of the parathyroid glands, which are small structures located near the thyroid gland in the neck.

When these glands produce too much parathyroid hormone as result of a growth (adenoma) in one of them, the extra secretion takes the calcium from the bones, leaving them thin, fibrous structures which fracture easily. This condition is treated by removing the enlarged gland from the neck.

Calcium is also used by the body in the clotting of the blood.

Blood clotting is a complicated process in which many elements participate. A deficiency of any of the required substances may result in a tendency toward hemorrhage.

Phosphorus is closely related to calcium, and most of the calcium and the phosphorus in the body are together.

For a long time people have taken medicines containing hypophosphites as a tonic for their nerves, simply because phosphorus is found in large amounts in the brain and spinal cord. The effect of hypophosphites is psychological, however; in cases of nervous exhaustion there is no evidence of organic disease in the nervous system.

Vitamin D assists the body in depositing calcium and phosphorus in the bone, but other factors are necessary as well.

food grew out of the same concept. While fish is an important item in the diet, it does not help people who are suffering with disease of the brain and spinal cord.

Vitamin D assists the body in depositing calcium and phosphorus in the bone, but other factors are necessary as well.

Vitamins A and C assist in the development of cartilage, vitamins C and D assist in the formation of dentine in the teeth, and thiamin is necessary for the development of bones in the long direction. Secretions of the pituitary and thyroid glands also aid in bone formation.

The well-balanced general diet permits the body to solve this problem. One should not rely on extra doses of calcium alone.

The idea that fish is a brain is not true. Fish is a brain in the sense that it contains a large amount of protein, which is essential for the growth and repair of all tissues.

(1) Light personal planes may be purchased over the counters of New York department stores today, a fact which indicates the widespread popularity flying will enjoy in the immediate future. Half a dozen manufacturers are building 30 to 50 planes daily to fill the demand, which is expected to reach 500,000 within five years. During the next decade roadable planes will be perfected. Fitted with rotors, they'll replace present-day convertibles. Experts predict that a million such craft will crowd the airways within the next score of years.

(3) Playing an important role in the transition to the air is the present-day helicopter. Large cities now using helicopters to carry mail to outlying airports will find them useful as ambulances and as fire-fighters. De-

Rural Saanich Wants New School System Withdrawn

Ratepayers of the rural North Saanich area at a meeting at North Saanich High School Wednesday night criticized the new school system under the Cameron Report legislation and decided to ask the provincial government to allow the district to revert to its former status.

Creation of School District No. 63 which includes Wards 5 and 6 of Saanich Municipality and the unorganized districts of North Saanich and James Island, meant an increase of 50 per cent in school tax without any educational advantages for North Saanich, it was stressed at the meeting.

Although the rural area had only 40 per cent of the school population, it was assessed 51½ per cent of school costs. Wards 5 and 6 with 60 per cent of the school population, had only 48½ per cent to pay.

WARDS PAY MORE

Commenting on this today, Sydney Plekles, chairman of the Ward 6 Ratepayers' Association, agreed that the system was unfair but pointed out that the wards in the new school district in being assessed 48½ per cent of school costs still were paying much more than they were under the old set-up. "The school system under the Cameron Report does not operate in the interest of rural areas," he said. "The trouble is most people endorsed the Cameron Report without having read it first."

Another criticism voiced by the northern ratepayers was the payment by the Saanich school district No. 63 of $1,000 a month for transportation of school children although not a single pupil from the area was carried.

Increased school costs of over $13,500 a year will mean an increase in the tax rate from the present eight mills to over 12 mills.

CIRCULATE PETITION

It was because of these facts that the meeting decided to circulate a petition among all North Saanich ratepayers asking that the rural district be separated from the north wards of Saanich as it existed before the Cameron legislation.

Also Dr. H. J. T. Coleman will be asked to head a delegation to make representations to the provincial government.

During the meeting the three present school board members were re-elected by acclamation as follows: F. J. Baker and A. R. Sansbury for two-year terms, and Miss R. Simpson, for a one-year term.

Xmas Mail Closing Dates Announced

The annual appeal from Post Office officials to "mail your Christmas parcels early" was given today with the announcement of closing dates for overseas mail.

Christmas letters and parcels going to the European continent must be in the post by Nov. 18. Parcels for the Yuletide season going to the United Kingdom must be mailed by Nov. 25. Letters for the United Kingdom will arrive there by Christmas if mailed before Dec. 2.

Veterans Ask Price Of V.L.A. Houses Be Cut One-Third

Twelve of the veterans who have agreed to purchase homes on the Braefoot Estate under terms of the Veterans' Land Act, Wednesday petitioned the Canadian Legion for assistance in getting the prices reduced, and having some of the defects which they complain of in the buildings remedied.

During the day A. Palmer of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council and Robert Knight, Canadian Legion, inspected the homes to see if the charges of the veterans were true.

Mr. Knight said, following the inspection, that they considered the building of the homes so faulty that they would certainly take up the matter of having the prices reduced from $7,850 to $6,000 and from $6,150 to $4,800.

The petition asked that the builders immediately take steps to remedy unsanitary conditions due to faulty installation of drains and septic tanks. It also asked that maintenance costs be guaranteed for the next 12 months, to be borne by the builders or the Dominion government.

Mr. Knight and Mr. Palmer interviewed officials of the V.L.A. here following the inspection, and were told that the proper authorities would be told of the existing conditions.

Jury Recommends Leniency For Bath

A strong recommendation for leniency was made by an Assize Court jury after it found Leonard Bath, 20-year-old Saanich youth, guilty of carrying a concealed weapon without a permit. Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane will sentence the accused at the end of the assize term.

The jury deliberated for two hours after defense counsel, Gordon Cameron, had made a strong plea for acquittal on the grounds that the accused was carrying the weapon without malicious intent. Bath had explained to the court that he had carried the P-38 German automatic pistol which he had won in a contest while serving in the army, to sell it to a friend in town.

Police also testified that the accused had a good reputation and had no record.

Many Applications To Soil 'Down Under'

Already more people than can be accommodated have made inquiries regarding passage to the South Pacific on the liner Wanganella, due here from New Zealand Nov. 22, according to R. J. Burland, C.P.R. general agent.

Those holding government priorities and New Zealand and Australian nationals are being given passage preference. The Wanganella is bringing 400 passengers to here and Vancouver from New Zealand and Australia.

Deaths continue to outpace deaths in Victoria, according to the quarterly report issued by Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, medical health officer, for the three-month period of July, August and September.

However, infant mortality has risen sharply over the same period in 1945, with 11 deaths compared to three last year. The mortality rate per 1,000 births is 17.9, and was 13.3 last year, but it is still considered very low, Dr. Anderson stated. There were no maternal deaths in the period.

There were 615 babies born in the three-month period, almost double the 388 born during the same period in 1945. There were more girls born in the period than boys, there being 322 girls and 293 boys.

The number of deaths increased only slightly to 278 for the three months in 1946 and 263 for 1945.

All Key Groups Lower In Indices

MONTREAL (CP) — Trading followed yesterday's easier lines on average up to the final hour today. All key groups were lower in the indices.

Papers down were off fractions to around a point. Down were International, Donnacona, Consolidated, Fraser, M. & O. and Dryden. Price converted loss the best performance on the upside. The post-election reaction of the previous session was extended at the opening, followed by a good general comeback and subsequent retreat.

Streng in industrials were Algoma, E. Steel, Cockshut, Dosco, Electrolux, H. Bridge, N.S. Car and C. Car. Losers were B. Products, U. Steel, Ford, Acadia A, C. Car common, Gymco, Cement preferred, Marconi and Vickers preferred.

Post-Election Reaction Extended

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks dipped and rallied at frequent intervals in today's market with rails, selected steels, motors, utilities and industrials giving the best performance on the upside. The post-election reaction of the previous session was extended at the opening, followed by a good general comeback and subsequent retreat.

While gains of fractions to 3 points or so were well distributed near the close, some losers remained.

In front were Northern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, U.S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Republic Steel, Chrysler, U.S. Rubber, Goodyear, General Electric, Philip Morris and Distillers Corp. Demand was attributed by brokers partly to the idea the list had been oversold by profit-takers.

Canadian stocks rallied at mid-day from yesterday's decline. McIntrye gained ½; Distillers 2%; Gymco, Cement preferred, Marconi and Vickers preferred.

Winnipeg Electric did not hold an increase and weaker were Power and Shawinigan, C.P.R. and P. Transport tumbled in carriers.

Also preferred and H.B. Mining advanced in metals and aluminum and nickel retreated.

Hiram Walker was unchanged.
